A Team Effort – June 9, 2025

We had one goal when we embarked on PIT's modernization: Remain operational during construction with minimal impact to our passengers, partners and team members.

Remaining operational while building entirely new airport facilities required close collaboration throughout PIT and with architectural/engineering teams, construction teams, federal agencies and numerous airport partners. Modernization in such a highly complex and regulated environment meant our operations and development teams had to work cross-functionally. This relationship and the partnership with our stakeholders led to important design/build decisions such as where cranes would be positioned or when loud construction activities would occur.

It takes many collaborators to keep PIT operating amid such a comprehensive and complicated modernization. And it is exactly that team effort that has kept our airport operational and in service to our community during construction.
