Partners Help Define Success– June 23, 2025

At ACAA, partnerships help us ensure the development and resiliency of the airport while benefitting the broader community. These relationships are more than transactional—they develop over years and allow us to create a positive experience for passengers.

PIT's transformation thrives on continued communication and collaboration with airlines, concession tenants, corporate partners, safety and security teams, transition teams and more. This is how we have remained operational while undergoing such a significant modernization.

It's no surprise that building the future of travel requires adaptability. Working collaboratively and cross-functionally has made all the difference in keeping us operational while minimizing the impacts of our transformation on passengers, team members, and of course, our partners.
